WEATHER AND DISEASE. How to Exist Happily During a

Chicago Winter. We best arm ourselves against all cold diseases by availing ourselves of every meas-ure which will tend to "toughen" us, writes Dr. Gotthilf, in the Chatauquan. Whoever does not do this will, the further the winter advances, become always weaker from lack of exercise, and always less able to resist. Then soon become established such unwholesome guests as rheomatism, influenza, diphtheria, and Both of the latter find a favorable footing in the respiratory organs debilitated by catarra. uld the cold spell be but short and mild and often interrupted by sunny days only the weakest persons suffer. But if the winter is very raw and long even strong constitutions fall a direct prey to dis-cases, or their bodies, usually their en-tire organisms are to uninvorsity effected that they have been severed constituthat they now have weakened constitu that they now have wearened constitu-tions disposed to discusse. This is why the various lung troubles, especially in-flammation of the lungs, reach their cul-mination toward the end of winter. Daily exercise in the fresh air, under changing conditions of weather, and at all times of year, is a means of resisting the evil in-fluences of the weather.

ces of the weather. This method of prevention and cure prophylaxis and therapeutics) is made use of in the so-called climatic watering places. Buteven at home we may accusof weather by accustoming it to quickly changing temperatures. This is done by warm baths, with a cold shower after ward, which is followeed by a strong muscuarmoveme with at gives a reaction to warmth to quick action in thus regulating the heat of the body, but also all the rest of the nervoussystemiscircugthened and ardened and with resistance against cold is developed also resistance against other de-pressing and sickening influence, against entual and morbidness. In the constitutional convention of Utah the following amendment was offered legislative assembly of the territory of runry, 1892, in so far as the same defines to be in force in the State of Utah."

After a long discussion the amendment was carried by a vote of 72 to 16.

This seems to put Utah right on the record, so far as the constitution is concerned. Polygamy, plural and sprittual marriages and all the rest of the illicit unions which prevailed so long in Utah under Mormon rule are forbiaden by the organic law and the sentiment of the people wiit uphold the constitution. There is some of the old leaven left, however, as the negative vote on the amendment bows. stifutional convection who were not will-ing to have polygamy deemed a felony, but it may be presumed that they repre-sented an outworn and obsolete creed and that their influence is not sufficient to affect the future of Utah.—San Francisco

It was in a geography lesson to Standard I, in an elementary school. After speaking how could I tell when I had left France and entered Germany?"

One youtgester, aged seven, immediately answered. "You could hear the German butds, please."—London Tid Bits.

Miller's Early Poems

Some one ought to protest against the publication of the youthful work-youthful indiscretions would be a better term-of their favorite authors. Joachim Miller is about to bring out a revised edition of his works. It is to be hoped that he will omit this gene from his earliest volume, appearing in 1869, from the collection. Come for ward here to me, ye who have fear of death;

Come down, far down, even to the dark And take my hand, and feel my calm, low

How peaceful all! How still and sweet! The sight is dim And dreamy as a distant sen—

It was my boy ambition to be read beyond the brine—
Do not stick me do wn in the cold, wet mud
As if I wished to hide or was ashamed of what I had done.
Or my friends wanted to plant me like an Irish spud.

A certain English commodore, who had the misfortune to lose a leg in a shark encounter, was beset wherever he went with questioners cager to know how, when and where he had met with his loss. He finally where he had met with his loss. He linary invented an expedient for suppressing his tormentors. He would promise to answer them one question, but only one, on the subject. The question invariably was: "How did you lose your leg?" and the in-variable answer. "It was bit off;" which, of course, left his hearers more curious than ever.—Exchange.
